'Misery Manor' brings haunted house to Lawrenceburg to help raise money for Shop With a Cop program

By Ben Carlson

Freddy Krueger, Jason Voorhees, Leatherface, Michael Myers and an incredibly scary looking clown named Captain Spaulding are spending October in Lawrenceburg and are bent on scaring the be-jeepers out of as many people as possible. Jason and his other ghoulish Hollywood pals won't be wandering the streets of Lawrenceburg killing teenagers who wander off the beaten path, or in Freddy's case fall asleep, but they will be hanging out at Eagle Lake throughout October to help raise money for Shop With a Cop.

Sheriff Troy Young and his deputies have spent the past couple of months planning and building Misery Manor, an intricate maze of horror delights that marks the return of a haunted house in Lawrenceburg for the first time in about a dozen years.

Admission is only $5, and all proceeds will benefit Shop With a Cop, which provides Christmas gifts for local children in need.

Misery Manor will be open Oct. 5-6, 11-12, 16-19, 25-25 and 28-31.

Now in its 29th year, Misery

Thousands here must sign up for Obamacare

New law requires individuals to buy health insurance or pay IRS penalty

By Ben Carlson
News staff

Obamacare, the federal law that forces individuals purchase health insurance, went into effect Tuesday when the state's insurance exchanges opened for business.

Officially called President Obama's Affordable Care Act, the law was passed in 2009 and requires individuals who have no health insurance or whose health insurance does not comply to purchase it or face financial penalties from the Internal Revenue Service.

The law will affect the 16.7 percent of Anderson County residents who don't have health insurance, according to data provided by the Anderson County Health Department.

Data show there are 3,116 residents in Anderson County who couldn't afford or refused to purchase health insurance. Just over half of that number (1,836) will have to sign up for Obamacare, while 1,280 will have to sign up for Medicaid, which was expanded under the law, according to statistics provided by the Anderson County Health Department.

Of the 1,836 required to sign up for Obamacare, only 338 will be forced to pay the full amount of their premiums, which will vary based a number of factors. Taxpayers will cover all or a portion of the premiums for the other 1,498.

Open enrollment for Kynect, the state's Kentucky Healthcare Connection, began Tuesday, and

Scores move district into top 25 in state

Ward, middle school still 'need improvement'

By Meaghan Downs
News staff

Newly released state test results reported significant improvements for the district — moving Anderson County into the top 25 percent of districts across the state for its overall score — while highlighting work that still needs to be done on science, social studies and the ACT.

Although the goal this year was to make the top 20 percent, administrators say they're pleased with the 2012 test score results released by the Kentucky Department of Education last Friday.

Anderson County elementary and high school students scored higher than the state average for their overall school scores, with the middle school trailing 1.7 points behind the state.

The district, as a whole, scored a 58.7 out of 100 compared to the state's score of 57.3, with Anderson County scoring better than 75 percent of the state.

Anderson ranked higher than surrounding districts Frankfort Independent (15th percentile), Frankfort County Public (47th percentile), Jessamine County (62nd percentile), Spencer County (51st percentile) and Mercer County (66th percentile). Fayette County (82nd) and Shelby County (77th percentile) achieved higher scores than Ander-

Brother-in-law says Rice Road man hospitalized; fundraiser set

By Ben Carlson

A Lawrenceburg man is recovering after suffering a severe head injury last Thursday morning in a one-car wreck on Rice Road.

Nick Crouch, 25, sustained head and shoulder injuries when the vehicle he was driving left the road and struck a tree around 6 a.m. near his home on Rice Road.

"He had a pretty traumatic head injury," his brother-in-law David Cartinhour said Monday afternoon by phone. "He also fractured his right shoulder. He's doing pretty good and is up and around but he will be in the hospital for a while."

Cartinhour said he doesn't have any official word from Crouch's

Manor is the creation of Mark Hoover, who operated it in various forms for nearly three decades in Franklin County. Hoover said those attending should, well, bring additional underwear.

“For the first time in 29 years, we will be scaring the (urine) out of people outside Franklin County borders,” he said in a news release. “The people of Anderson County had better bring an extra pair of drawers.”

Young and his cadre of deputies have been working feverishly during their off-duty hours to assemble Misery Manor, which consumes an entire section of the flea market portion of Eagle Lake Convention Center. Young and deputy BJ Crane provided a sneak preview last week, taking a visitor through the various rooms of the haunted house, which was assembled to look like a spooky, many-roomed cabin in the woods.

Constructed of 2x3 lumber covered by heavy cardboard and long lengths of tree bark, the cabin weaves it way through the giant room. The first ghoulish visitors will encounter is Leatherface, the chainsaw-wielding monster made famous in a series of “Texas Chainsaw Massacre” movies.

Young said that character has built a reputation in other haunted houses of being the first — and last — thing some visitors see.

“When he did this a year ago, he kept count of how many people turned tail and left,” Young said during the sneak preview. “It was over 140 who said, ‘That’s enough for me,’ and walked right out.”

Other stops along the way include a visit from Freddy Krueger of “Nightmare on Elm Street,” made famous for attacking teenagers during their all-to-real dreams. There is also a visit from Michael Myers of the “Halloween” movies who tracks down victims with a giant knife, and Jason Voorhees of the various “Friday the 13th” movies, resplendent in his trademark hockey mask and various instruments of death.

Perhaps not as famous but equally scary is Captain Spaulding, a clown who will give those already afraid of clowns a reason to avoid circuses altogether.

Operating under the name greenfactory, Hoover said he and his pals have raised tens of thousands of dollars for a variety of charitable causes during its three decades of operation. During that span, he said it has gained a reputation of being one of the best haunted house displays the region.

“We have been regionally ranked several times as one of the scariest haunted attractions in the Midwest,” Hoover said. “We have always been classified as one of the finest haunts in Kentucky — many times, the best.”

doctors, but expects he will recover.

“He’s in a lot of pain from his shoulder,” he said.

The wreck was a puzzle for a sheriff’s deputy who was called to the scene but found only Crouch’s car resting against a tree.

Deputy Tony Likens said he checked around the car to find any victims before a woman drove by and said her husband picked up Crouch and drove him home.

Likens said she left before he could ask any questions.

Cartinhour said Crouch was taken to his mom’s home on Rice Road, and at first appeared to be OK.

“He was standing in the road after the wreck and was a little dazed, so a neighbor took him home,” he said. “His mom [Jeanette Powers] to him straight to the hospital in Frankfort.”

He said doctors there decided he needed advanced care and decided to airlift Crouch to the University of Kentucky Medical Center, but fog prevented pilots from taking off. He was transported instead by ambulance.

Fundraiser to benefit Crouch

A pig roast and four-wheeler races to raise money for Nick Crouch are planned for Saturday, Oct. 12.

Doug Smith, owner of Smith’s Towing, said the event will be held at 1655 Bonds Mill Road, starting at 5:30 p.m.

“He’s well-known and well-liked,” Smith said of Crouch. “I can’t say enough good about the guy, and all the money we take in will go to him.

“He’s always been a super-good guy who would bend over backwards for anyone.”

Smith said there will be a $10 charge at the gate, and prices are still under consideration for pig plates.

He said competitors for the four-wheeler races will pay a $5 registration fee for various classes.

For more information, call Smith at 859-225-1255. Smith said all are welcome.

Affect on health department unknown

Tim Wright, director of the Anderson County Health Department, said it remains to be seen if the department will be hurt or helped by Obamacare. “There’s still a lot in limbo,” Wright said last week. “I don’t know.”

Wright said the department, which provides preventative care services such as flu shots and a variety of family planning services, is listed as a provider under Obamacare.

“It could mean we could pick up patients since we are part of the network,” Wright said.

But because some of those who currently use the department will have health insurance or be enrolled into the expanded Medicaid plans, those patients could not visit private medical facilities, costing him patients.

The expanded Medicaid could pose a problem, Wright said, because the department will lose money treating those patients.

Wright said currently, the department keeps about 70 percent of the Medicaid payments it receives and sends about 30 percent to state government. Under expanded Medicaid, Wright said the department will receive nothing and stands to lose between $23 to $55, based on the service those patients receive.

“That will take local tax dollars to cover the cost,” he said.

son said.

People who don’t have access to the Internet may call 855-459-6328 (855-4kynect) to find out where to go to fill out a paper application, Richardson said.

“You can go in person to places in your area that we call in-person connectors, like the health department,” she said. “They can tell you, if you call, where to go closest to you and help you fill out a paper application.”

The earliest date that coverage can become effective is Jan. 1, that is, if you sign up by Dec. 15, Richardson said.

“If you sign up after that, it will be a rolling date,” she said.

What’s the cost?

Richardson said that wherever she has given presentations on the topic the main thing people want to know is how much it will cost them.

“Things that will determine your out-of-pocket cost will be your age, your location, your household size and your household income,” she said. “When you plug all that in, it will show you the plans that are available, and it will have already figured in any discount you would be eligible for.”

She could not give a figure on what an average premium would be. “People will have to plug in their information themselves because there are so many variables that we don’t have an average price,” she said.

People who already have insurance through his or her employer may also check it out, and some employers may encourage people to go buy insurance on the exchange instead because it may offer better variety and value, officials say.

“The website will check against your employer and tell you if you need to change,” Richardson said.

Plans are labeled gold, silver, or bronze based on how much the buyer will have to pay out of pocket. A gold plan costs more in premiums but has lower deductibles.

On the Kynect Web site, price estimates for a premium for a family of four making less than $48,000 per year is $252 per month and an individual making $20,000 per year might pay $67 per month.

Richardson said the site’s call center is already taking phone calls and has both English and Spanish language options available.

NEWS BRIEFS

Reward offered for the recovery of cheerleading bag, backpack

Parents of middle school student Taylor Ferry are looking for any information regarding the theft of Taylor's cheerleading bag and backpack allegedly taken during last Friday's homecoming football game.

Items were allegedly taken from a red 2008 Camry between 7-10 p.m. last Friday. A handmade AMS white and blue cheerleading bag that contained cheer shoes, clothes and class ring is missing, along with a Victoria's Secret hot pink backpack with black polka dots that contained school papers, folders and Taylor's inhaler.

The Ferrys have filed a police report regarding the car break-in.

The family is offering a reward for any kind of information and/or the recovery of the missing items.

If anyone has any information, contact Brittany Ferry at 859-321-9891.

Jefferson/Jackson dinner is Oct. 8

The Anderson County Democratic Woman's Club, in conjunction with the Anderson County Democratic Executive Committee, will host the annual Jefferson/Jackson Dinner on Tuesday, Oct. 8 at 6 p.m., the organizations announced.

The event will be held at the Anderson County Senior Citizen's Center and will feature Democratic candidates for U.S. Senate, including Allison Lundergan Grimes and Greg Leichty, and Democratic candidates for U.S. Representative, including Elisabeth Jensen, Joe Palumbo and Michael Coblenz.

Tickets, which are $30 and includes dinner can be obtained by calling Bobbi Jo Lewis at 502-859-0100 or Deborah Stevens at 502-839-5462.

Anderson County Farmers Market to host fall festival

The Anderson County farmers market will host a fall festival Oct. 5 from 9 a.m. to close.

The market will have pumpkins of all shapes and sizes, gourds, mums, corn shocks, crafts, tastings, yard sales and more.

Crafters set up is $10 per stand.

To sign up or for more questions, contact 502-839-5551.

Rain date for the festival will be Oct. 6.

'Mary Todd Lincoln' to host Chautauqua at library

The Lawrenceburg Pierian Woman's Club will host Mary Todd Lincoln, portrayed by Trish Clark, on Nov. 15 at 7 p.m. at the Anderson Public Library, according to a news release.

"Mary Todd Lincoln lived a life of tremendous triumph and great tragedy," the news release said. "Born in Lexington in 1818, Mary Todd attended John Ward's school and Charlotte Mentelle's boarding school, making her one of the most well-educated women of her time. She followed her older sisters to Springfield, Ill., and in November 1842 she married lawyer and state legislator Abraham Lincoln.

BUMPER CROP

Christopher Conway displays a pair of tobacco leaves that he and his family grew on river bottom land in Fox Creek. The leaves grew from an experimental seed provided by the University of Kentucky. Christopher's father, John Wayne, said the results were good. 'It grew well,' he said. 'It's probably the best crop we've had in the past two or three years.' It did well enough, he said, that it should make up for the 2 1/2 acres they lost due to flooding earlier this year that wiped out acres of tobacco plants here and across central Kentucky. Extension agriculture agent Tommy Yankey said the sees are called KTH, which stands for Kentucky-Tennessee Hybrid, and that Conway's field was the only one in which it was tested. Yankey said the 'crop looked really good.'

"Mary had high expectations for her husband's political career. Those expectations were realized when Lincoln was elected President of the United States in November 1860. Her years in the White House were some of the most tumultuous in American history as President Lincoln worked to unite a nation in the midst of a Civil War.

"The First Lady created controversy as she spent much of her time in the White House turning it into a stately mansion, worthy to be the home of the Lincolns and the United States of America.

With the country struggling through the war, many saw her actions as frivolous and extravagant. Mary's personal life was filled with great tragedy. Her son Eddie died while the Lincolns were living in Springfield.

"While in the White House, her young son Willie died in 1862.

Three years later, and five days after Robert E. Lee surrendered, her beloved husband was assassinated at Ford's Theatre. And, in 1871, her son Tad died of pleurisy.

Four years later, a distraught Mary was committed to a private asylum for the insane by her lone surviving son, Robert. You can decide if she belonged there."

Free Medicare enrollment offered

Open enrollment for Medicare is scheduled from Tuesday, Oct. 15 through Dec. 7 at the Anderson Senior Center.

This is the time to check, change or drop coverage for 2014, organizers said in a news release.

Enrollment is by appointment, which can be scheduled by calling SHIP counselor Shelia Smith at 502-839-7520 or reach her via e-mail at salexsmith@hotmail.com.

The service is free and offered by a trained professional of SHIP through Legal Aid of the Bluegrass.

Organizers warned that Medicare recipients should take caution when enrolling and added that Obamacare does not apply to Medicare recipients, nor do the insurance marketplace exchanges developed as a result of Obamacare.

"It is illegal for someone to try and sell you a marketplace plan," organizers said. "It is also illegal for anyone to contact you or come into your home uninvited to sell you a Medicare plan.

"Never give out any Medicare numbers or personal info on the phone. Medicare does not contact by phone."

Cheri Johnson is quite a bit older now, but this is what she looked like the day she turned 50 when her car was wrapped in cellophane on Main Street.

My turn is next, queen of pranks

There's an old adage that says it's a bad idea to argue with someone who buys ink by the gallon (that would be me). It's also a bad idea to get into a prank war with someone like me, particularly when the prank involves purchasing an ad in The Anderson News Extra that pokes fun at me for turning 50 this week.

Cheri Johnson, a health department nurse who fancies herself Lawrenceburg's Queen of Pranks, did just that, placing an ad in Monday's Extra in a somewhat lame attempt to exact a measure of revenge for a crime I did not commit.

I've reprinted the ad here in case you missed it Monday.

One would think that Cheri, the victim of a world-class prank a couple of years ago, would know better than to kick a mean dog when it's sleeping, but she apparently doesn't.

You remember Cheri, right? If not, perhaps the photo I've included on this page will jog your memory. (I know she's quite a bit older, now, but trust me, it's her).

Cheri's family pranked her pretty effectively on her 50th birthday (I think it was about 10 years ago) by moving her car from the old health department building to the front of the courthouse then wrapping it with about an inch of heavy-duty cellophane.

My role in that? Nothing, except to respond to her family's request to take photos and print them in the paper. I did, and Cheri ended up on the front page that week, which I thought was a great way to give her a genuine memento of her special occasion.

Not Cheri. From the moment I started snapping photos she pointed the finger of blame at me (for proof, see the photo) and vowed that when I turn 50, she'd exact a measure of revenge.

I admit being a bit apprehensive as the week approached. During the years since her car was wrapped, Cheri has made sure I knew she hadn't forgotten and repeated her vengeful vows of retaliation.

About a week ago she began sending me a barrage of daily text messages, heightening my sense of caution and keeping me on my toes. I ducked as I entered doorways for fear of the old water bucket above the door gag, and figured I'd find my truck similarly wrapped when I got up each morning.

I wasn't letting my guard down for a moment.

Imagine my disappointment, then, when a co-worker here came into my office and told me about the goofy little ad.

"That's it?" I asked. "After what seems like a decade of veiled threats and ominous gestures that's all the so-called greatest prankster in Lawrenceburg could conjure up?"

Not that she didn't try. She worked hard to make co-conspirators of others in my office, but failed miserably.

She tried to enlist the help of others, too, before apparently giving up hope and letting her little jab about me "running on hot air" be the best she had to offer.

She did make a solid late effort by using posting my image around town encouraging people to call me, along with giant letters spelling out happy birthday surrounded by buzzards on the hill in front of my office. She promised more but as of press time, that's all she could come up with.

It's a shame, really, because I was sort of looking forward to having something, anything, happen. I'd say, "Nice try," but it really wasn't.

The good news is that it's my turn next, and trust me on this, Ms. Cheri, my efforts on your next birthday will be much, much better.

Prayer Walk exalted Jesus Christ

To the editor:

On Sept. 21, many people from our community came together for the Anderson County Prayer Walk. Although we did not get to walk due to the weather, those in attendance accomplished our goal: to exalt Jesus Christ and to be unified in our prayers for Anderson County.

We would like to thank everyone who made the gathering possible. To all the people who gave of their time, talent and treasure, we say, "May God richly bless you!"

It is our fervent prayer that Jesus Christ reign in Anderson County and that the body of Christ be unified in making him known through our love for one another and our love for this community.

ACLU 'goons' threatening schools

To the editor:

Seems like the well-dressed thugs of the ACLU have notified Kentucky schools with their latest demands to censor any faith-based materials or activities for the coming year. Sadly, many school districts across the state have cowered to the demands, thus robbing students, teachers and others of their First Amendment protection of "free exercise" or religion.

Operating much like the mafia in major cities, the goons of the ACLU contact local schools with threats of legal action and costly lawsuits in order to coerce the schools into surrendering their Constitutional rights. School districts across Kentucky are already suffering from financial drain and each year face serious money-crunching decisions. The last thing they need is the ACLU knocking on their doors and threatening million dollar court cases if a child is exposed to a Bible, a praying coach or a teacher who might wish her students a Merry Christmas.

Those school districts who resist the bullying, are then subjected to costly legal fees and more often than not, eventually cry uncle and submit to the demands of those who want to completely secularize a nation whose founders envisioned a nation dependent upon God. We once had a populace who was educated enough to realize that our founders spoke only against Congress establishing a national denomination. However, over the course of time, the history revisionists removed some of the most compelling quotes of men like George Washington, John Adams, Benjamin Rush, John Jay, Thomas Jefferson, Ben Franklin and others from our children's textbooks and were able to convince Americans that "Separation of Church and State" is a fundamental document.

Guess what - those words do not exist in the Constitution. Look it up. You'll not find it in the Federalist Papers, the Articles of Confederation, the Declaration of Independence or any other founding document. Our founding fathers represented a variety of theological beliefs. Most were sincere believers of the gospel and relied on God through some of the most trying times of our nation's infancy. I hope the good people of Anderson County care enough about our nation, those who died protecting it, and the future generations to stand up for liberty.

Correction

Due to a typographical error, a sentence in last week's letter to the editor titled "Must be willing to allow all 'brands' of prayer" should have read, "Certainly they are not being 'forced' to participate, but school age children are so vulnerable to peer pressure, bullying and ostracization, that it would be a rare child who would willingly stand out of the group."

'Hypocrites' on school board know they're wrong on prayer

I find it interesting that Roger McDowell, Anderson County School Board member, doesn't know the teachings that his Bible teaches him.

Matthew 6:6 is clearly against praying in public and that is straight from the big man's mouth.

"But thou, when thou prayest, enter into thy closet, and when thou has shut thy door, pray to thy Father which is in secret; and thy Father which seeth in secret shall reward thee openly"

The Bible is very clear; it even says that folks that pray openly are hypocrites, but who am I to judge?

My personal opinion is that prayer is between you and the god you have chosen to believe in, and has nothing to do with me or anyone else.

Here is the thing that Mr. McDowell fails to understand with his statement: "If this offends you, you're welcome to leave." We all pay taxes to help run the school, so we don't exactly have to leave nor do we have to be forced to acknowledge the god he has chosen to believe in.

How would Mr. McDowell feel if Muslims were the majority and he was told that if he didn't like it, he could leave? That isn't only offensive to non-believers but to everyone that doesn't believe exactly the way Mr. McDowell believes.

Of course, Bible scripture doesn't really matter here because our court systems have already found this to be unconstitutional and illegal and neither Mr. McDowell nor a certain religion control anything that tax money goes to support.

At the board meeting, there were such comments as "fight them," by Rick Burkhead of Alabama. Wait, what?

This is Anderson County, Kentucky, right? I mean, I'm in the correct place, right?

What does Mr. Burkhead's opinion about the issue matter to anyone? Does he send taxes from Alabama up to Anderson County to help support the school system?

Then you have Philip Cooke, who is angry that students are being denied the opportunity to learn about Christian values ... in public school. Shouldn't those kids be learning Christian values in, church? Or maybe the home?

I'm angry that Anderson County Schools ranked 33rd in Kentucky with a rank score of 64 - ranked based on math and English test scores. I'm angry that students are being denied the opportunity to learn math and English.

We also found out that Brittany Price wants god in Anderson County ... well, just her god, Yahweh, but not any of those other gods. It's sad that Ms. Price doesn't realize that Yahweh is alive and well in Anderson County, there are churches all over the place and anyone is free to go there, pray and worship as much as they want.

Here is the best thing about the school board meeting. Mr. McDowell admitted that the board deliberately chose to hold a public prayer prior to the official opening of the meeting and even left it off of the agenda. Now why would they do that if they are right?

If these folks want to "fight," shouldn't they stand their ground to prove they are right? Why would they leave it off the agenda and pray before the meeting even started if they believed in the crap that speak about?

Those actions prove that the school board realizes that it's illegal and unfair to everyone in Anderson County.

Put prayer on the agenda, hit that little hammer down before you pray and then go to court and settle it. Remember, you believe Yahweh has a master plan and this is all apart of it. Pray that Yahweh forces the court system to see it your way and pray that Yahweh ends this attack against your values.

Have faith in your prayers and stand behind them and realize that the decision is all about of the master plan, more or less. Have faith that Yahweh will provide you the money needed to fight this in our court system and, it's his plan that the court system will side with you.

Yahweh has allowed the US court system to rule that this type of stuff is illegal time and time again, yet the Christians keep fighting it. Who are you to go against Yahweh's plan?

I've been a member of Anderson County for almost 10 years and I have a son in the Anderson County School system and, like it or not, I'm not going anywhere. Believe it or not, I'm not the only atheist in this little town.

So, in closing, not only are these people proving they are hypocrites by going directly against their religion and angering the big guy upstairs, they are breaking the law and they know it; they admit it with their actions.

I pay taxes, I'm a member of the community and I have a child in the school system and I'm an atheist and, like it or not, I'm equally as important to you. This is still America and we are all equal, not just the folks that believe the same as you.

Go to your church, pray to the god you have chosen and teach your children to follow in your footsteps, however, do as your Bible tells you and obey the law of the land.

Romans 13:1 - "let every soul be subject to the governing authorities. For there is no authority except from God, and the authorities that exist are appointed by God."

Stop fighting the big mans plan, you are just making him angry ... and you won't like him when he's angry!"

October's here so don't forget to harvest next year's seeds

Happy October. The 10th month is upon us and it's a very seedy time. It's all I can do not to trim the faded flowers from the hydrangeas, echinacheas, cup plants and the myriad of other once blooming flowers that grace the farm. They look scraggly, but the birds love them. I got to enjoy the blooms all summer and fall so it's only fitting that wildlife get to enjoy them now.

The birds shouldn't be the only ones harvesting seeds now, though. You should, too.

Cheryl Steenerson
Columnist

Think of those scraggly flower heads as a plant store. In most cases all you have to do is lay down a sheet or towel and shake the plant. The seeds will fall. Then, all you have to do is gather them in an envelope with the name and year on it. Free flowers for next year.

You can save your vegetable seeds, too, as long as they aren't hybrids. I like to store those too big yellow squash and zucchini in a corner of the garden until now. It's only now that I have the counter space to dry and package the seeds. I also leave some late beans to brown and dry on the plant. It just makes harvesting easier.

You can cut up those squash and then use a spoon to scrape out the seeds from the insides. Lay them out to dry on a marked paper plate. After a couple of days they should be cured enough to package in marked envelopes. Be sure to mark the year as well as the name.

Saving tomato seeds is almost as easy. Be sure to pluck the ripest tomatoes and then squeeze them over a colander, so the juice and seeds fall into it. Rinse them with water and then empty it onto a paper plate or wax paper. Let them dry for a week before storing them in an envelope.

Saving beans is just as simple. Let the pods stay on the vine until they lose their color and get almost brittle. Then, you can gather and do a little crackin. The pods should split right open to reveal the seeds and drop them onto a paper plate or wax paper. Let them dry a couple of days before putting them in an envelope.

Besides the fall colors, apples are my favorite fall items. I love apples of all colors. Besides being good for you, they're fun to eat. I like them raw and whole, peeled and sliced, baked and cooked.

My grandmother used to make the best baked apples and the best applesauce ever. I have tried to follow her example. It's not too hard. Slice an apple in half, take out the core and then place them on a cookie sheet or big casserole dish, flesh side up. Fill that hole with a piece of real butter, sprinkle a little sugar and cinnamon on top and them bake at 350 until soft.

The applesauce takes a little more work. Peel and core the apples and then cut into little bits. If you buy one of the peeler/corers it's a lot easier. Put them in a saucepan with a tiny amount of water just to keep them from sticking to the bottom of the pan. Then, just let them cook down.

The kind of apples you use will determine how much or how little sugar you need to add. I like to use cooking apples, like Macintosh, Cortland or Gravenstein, and then throw in some Fuji, Galas or Honey Crisp as sweeteners. That way I only have to add a tablespoon or two of sugar. Shake a little cinnamon in there and you will have some great sauce. I put mine in Tupperware and freeze it.

If you have a sweet tooth to satisfy, grab the melon baller. Use it to carve out little apple balls. Stick them with toothpicks and then pile them onto a serving plate with a cup of caramel in the center. Oh man. Talk about a sweet treat. Now, get out there and gather some seeds. While you're at it, gather some nuts before the squirrels do. Happy Growing.

DOWN

But last Saturday was the first time I encountered the re-enactment as scene setting for an upcoming movie.

"Something like this would cost a million dollars to stage," Zahnd told me, after I asked the 'Breath of Heaven' director and actor why he was filming the Lawrenceburg Civil War re-enactment.

"Breath of Heaven" takes place during the Civil War, but it isn't about the Civil War, Zahnd explained.

The intention is to show the Civil War, but not let the movie get taken over by it.

After getting in touch with the Kentucky Film Office, and in turn, with the city of Lawrenceburg, Zahnd, Furrow and their crew drove to Lawrenceburg to capture footage the re-enactment battle for their $400,000-600,000 budget independent film.

Zahnd, a film instructor at JCTC in Louisville, said he brought along nine of his film students and set up a DSLR camera on a barrel at one end of the re-enactment field.

Zahnd, who said he's been a filmmaker since 2006, manned the camera crane set-up I mentioned earlier. Another one of his students hid in the trees across the way, Zahnd said, getting some "guerrilla" style shots. Zahnd, dressed in clothing appropriate to the period, said they were going to stage some close-ups later with re-enactment volunteers.

According to screenwriter and lead actress Kathryn Furrow, "Breath of Heaven" is a movie about a romance involving a woman, a man, and the man's best friend.

"It's a love triangle of sorts," Furrow said, "but not in your typical way."

The woman is in an abusive relationship with one, and her family is in business with the other.

So, you know, as complicated as the relationship between Humphrey Bogart, Ingrid Bergman and her saintly fiancé Victor Laslo in "Casablanca."

I'm sure as free from emotional heartache as the relationship between the frustratingly dense Scarlett

O'Hara, the milksop Ashley Wilkes and the devilishly loveable Rhett Butler (obviously, I'm Team Rhett, if "Gone with the Wind" fans could have picked sides.) Furrow, sitting in the shade after the re-enactment with her two daughters, said her script has been 20 years in the making after a trip she took to New Orleans.

On the movie's website, which you can find at www.breathofheavenmovie.com, she writes more about how the story came to be, "against the backdrop of 1850s New Orleans and New York, we experience the lives of three friends who find that the traditional setting of a love triangle becomes even more complicated when dealing with honor and virtue in polite society."

The film is on a small budget, and is in the early, early stages of filming. Furrow and Zahnd said they might consider moving some of the filming to Lawrenceburg after May 2014.

They've got their eyes on some cemeteries, and on the T. B. Ripy house as possible locations to film.

The bourbon mansion looks perfect to play the part of a house down in New Orleans.

Bruner pleads guilty in woman's beating

By Lisa King
The Sentinel-News

Mark Bruner, charged with the brutal beating in 2011 of a woman left by the side of the road, has pleaded guilty to first-degree assault in connection with that crime and will be facing a long prison term.

Bruner, 39, whose jury trial was scheduled to begin Monday, pleaded guilty to that charge on Sept. 16, and Shelby Circuit Court Judge Charles Hickman has set a sentencing date for Oct. 23.

Bruner was indicted last year by a Shelby County Grand Jury in connection with the beating of Denisse Escareno on Nov. 5, 2011. He was arrested 10 days after Escareno, 24, was found beaten, stabbed and barely alive by passersby on the side of Mount Eden Road, about 2 miles south of Interstate 64.

Bruner

Escareno was in a coma at the University of Louisville Hospital until Christmas Day 2011, when she opened her eyes. She has remained unresponsive, however, and was taken home to Arizona in February 2012 by her mother, Norma Zapien, who said doctors told her that her daughter never would recover mental awareness.

Shelby County Commonwealth Attorney Laura Donnell said Bruner's guilty plea was unexpected and that her office had no made no plea agreements with him. She said that he pleaded guilty to his original charges, which also included tampering with physical evidence, a Class D felony.

"He pleaded guilty without a recommendation from our office," Donnell said. "Nevertheless, we are pleased. This was our goal, that he be sentenced on his original charges."

Shelby County Sheriff's Det. Jason Rice said that Bruner would be looking at a minimum of 11 years and a maximum of 25 years for the two felonies - first-degree assault carries a penalty of 10 to 20 years and tampering with physical evidence has a penalty of 1 to 5 years in prison.

"I'm glad it's over so the family can get some closure," Rice said. "He's looking at a substantial number of years behind bars, and really, I'd rather not put it in the hands of a jury when you've got a solid amount of years that's pretty much going to take him into the rest of his adult life."

Rice added that Bruner would have to serve 85 percent of whatever sentence he receives from Hickman before he becomes eligible for parole.

Bruner, a resident of Taylorsville, has been behind bars since he was arrested, and he has had many court appearances leading up to pleading guilty.

Police have said Bruner had picked up Escareno in his truck while she was walking to a cellular-phone store on that Saturday afternoon and that she left the store with him. They haven't said why he might have beaten her.

Detectives said in court that Escareno was stabbed in the chest and hip area with a screwdriver. Her other serious injury was a deep indentation in the area of her right eyebrow, which, they said, she could have received by jumping from Bruner's vehicle.

Rice said that the charge of tampering with physical evidence comes from Bruner's attempt to dispose of the weapon used in the assault.

Frankfort Regional Hospital completes national pediatric readiness survey

From staff reports

Frankfort Regional Medical Center recently completed a multi-phase quality improvement initiative to ensure that its emergency department is fully prepared to provide effective care for children, the hospital announced.

Known as the National Pediatric Readiness Project under the Emergency Medical Services for Children National Resource Center (NRC), it is the first national assessment of pediatric readiness in ED's across the United States.

"By having a pediatric-ready Emergency Department, we are able to provide specific equipment, supplies and medications for children, in a safe and caring atmosphere," said Mark Sloan, M.D., medical director of the Emergency Department. "Through our ongoing quality improvement measures, Frankfort Regional Medical Center is a leader in the National Pediatric Readiness Project and continues to strive to provide the best care possible to children when they need it most."

board certified physicians, pediatric trained nurses, and other health care providers, who have the necessary skills, knowledge and training in emergency evaluation and treatment of children of all ages.

Frankfort Regional Medical Center began the survey process in February 2012 with on site meetings followed by a confidential web-based assessment earlier this year, where the hospitals were able to bench mark their readiness against other facilities in Kentucky and the United States with similar pediatric patient volumes.

Frankfort Regional Medical Center continued to work on key measures throughout the year addressing areas such as administration and coordination; physicians, nurses and other ED staff; quality improvement and performance improvement in the ED; pediatric patient safety; policies, procedures and protocols; and equipment, supplies and medication.

One of the safety measures Frankfort Regional Medical Center implemented earlier this year is the Artemis System - a tool that allows medical professionals to instantly access proper pediatric dosing in acute preparation and administration of drugs, reduce medical errors and standardizes pediatric dosing so that they can safely provide young patients with high quality emergency care.

"Compared to adults, pediatric emergency needs are unique," said Karen Wooldridge, Director of Emergency Services.

"In any emergency situation, we want parents to feel comfortable knowing that their children, even from the youngest age, are going to receive the highest level and quality of emergency care possible."

After completing the assessment, Frankfort Regional's pediatric readiness score was 100. In the state of Kentucky, a total of 103 out of 105 EDs participated in the survey, and the state median readiness score was 69 percent.

Four Roses defends Burgoo Cook Off title

From staff reports

The Four Roses team of Jesse Sanford and Jeff Royalty successfully defended their title Saturday by winning the third annual Burgoo Cook Off, a fundraiser for Shop With a Cop.

The dynamic burgoo duo won going away, outdistancing second place Wild Turkey and third place newcomers Darnell's Old Tyme Burgoo. Rounding out the field was Atmos Energy in fourth and newcomer Farmers Bank in fifth.

The cook off, sponsored by The Anderson News, was the most successful to day and raised $1,200 to purchase Christmas gifts for children in need.

"It was great," said Sheriff Troy Young, whose office started and operates the local Shop With a Cop program. "It's a fun event and a great way to kick off our fundraising year."

"I want to thank all the teams for their time and efforts in making this possible. They were terrific."

Judges are anyone making a $2 to Shop With a Cop. Each is given a scorecard and ranks each team's burgoo and booth presentation on a scale of 0 to 10. The team that racks up the most total points wins, including a trophy donated by David Brown of Events Imaging and Awards in Lawrenceburg.

While the burgoo is the main attraction, the booths add plenty to the event's appeal, which again this year attracted visitors from all over Kentucky and several states.

Sanford and Royalty of Four Roses displayed a variety of bourbon-related items, including a motorcycle made in part from bourbon barrels.

Wild Turkey set up an old-time saloon, complete with its famous bird image doubling as swinging doors and a giant inflatable bottle of bourbon.

Atmos Energy created a old time shack and wowed the crowd by donning "Duck Dynasty" gear and beards while blowing on duck calls.

Dudley Darnell and his son, Dudley Jr. went old school, crafting an old time building front and cooking their burgoo on location.

The team from Farmers Bank had a western appeal, including hay bales and a saddle out front.

"This event has grown beyond what we expected," said Ben Carlson, the newspaper's editor and publisher. "At only $2 per scorecard, raising $1,200 in just three hours is incredible."

"The teams put in an incredible amount of time, effort and expense in making this event what it is, and while they all certainly want to win, they all say that the only thing that matters is the money raised for children in need, which is why we started the event in the first place."

Spencer County man first to enter race for state representative

Landmark News Service
The first candidate to throw his name into the discussion for the newly created 53rd district of the Kentucky House of Representatives is Spencer County's James Allen Tipton.

Tipton

Tipton announced on Monday that he filed a letter of intent with the Kentucky Registrar of Election Finance to run for state representative.

Candidates can't officially file to run for office until November, but those who hope to get a head start on fundraising can file a letter of intent to move forward in setting up their campaign account.

Tipton, a farmer and real estate broker, will seek the Republican nomination for the 53rd district in the May 2014 primary election. The 53rd House District was recently formed as a result of redistricting and consists of all of Anderson County, all of Spencer County and two precincts in northeastern Bullitt County.

Tipton said considered running for judge-executive in Spencer County in the 2014 election, but thought he was being led in a different direction.

"I thought about this, prayed about this and talked to a lot of people," Tipton said. "This is what I was being led to do. It's an awesome opportunity."

Tipton said he has friends and acquaintances not only in Spencer County, but in Anderson County and in the Bullitt County precincts and looks forward to having the opportunity to serve all of those communities.

Tipton is a 1977 graduate of Taylorsville High School and received a Bachelor of Science in agriculture in 1981 and a master's in vocational education in 1985 from the University of Kentucky. After college, Tipton came back home to partner with his father, Owen Tipton, on the family dairy farm. Tipton and his family continue that tradition today with a 40 head cow/calf beef operation.

Tipton has been a licensed real estate agent since 1999.

He has been active on multiple boards and community organizations.

He is currently a member of the Kentucky Association of Realtors Professional Standards Committee, board member of Cornerstone Christian Academy, treasurer of Spencer County Farm Bureau and vice-chairman of the Spencer County Board of Adjustments.

Tipton previously served on the Kentucky Farm Bureau Resolutions Committee and said that experience contributed to his background in policy.

As part of the resolutions committee, Tipton said he helped review about 1,000 resolutions per year to come up with ideas and suggestions to present to the Farm Bureau delegates. Once voted on, those resolutions became Farm Bureau policy.

Tipton said, based on his research, the last time Spencer County was home to a state representative was in 1973 during the third and final term of Stuart Kelly.

"Forty years is long enough for Spencer County not to have a representative in the legislature," Tipton said. "I can do a lot for the county and the community."

Spencer County Republican Party Chair Steve Hesselbrock said he's glad to see Tipton step up to the plate.

"I'm really glad to see a Spencer Countian step up and run for this leadership position," Hesselbrock said, adding that this is the first time in many years that Spencer County will be represented by one representative — the county has previously been split into three districts.

"[Tipton] is a person of integrity and he's knowledgeable concerning issues in the 53rd district, which is our district, as well as across the commonwealth," Hesselbrock said.

"He would represent all of the constituents equally."

When the legislature passed the new legislative districts last month, Tipton said he had several people approach him about running for office.

"I reached out to friends in the district and around the state and, overwhelmingly, there was so much positive encouragement and support," Tipton said.

"I've had a lot of people praying over this with me, and I just think the Lord is laying this on my heart to do."

According to a news release, Tipton believes Kentuckians deserve more accountability from state government, and believes in the following:

- Reducing wasteful spending and unnecessary programs to make more funds available to invest in education.

- Small businesses are the engine of the state's economy and excessive taxation and unnecessary regulations have slowed economic growth.

- 100 percent pro-life.

- Being a staunch supporter of second amendment rights.

Tipton is a member of Briar Ridge Christian Church.

He and his wife, the former Martha Ruble, along with their three children, Joshua, Jacob and Sarah, reside in the Little Mount community.

Farm Bureau hosts annual youth, variety contests

From staff reports
Anderson County Farm Bureau recently held its outstanding Farm Bureau youth and variety contests on Sept. 24 at the Anderson County High School auditorium, according to a news release.

The contests were organized by the Women's Chair of Farm Bureau, Sue Litkenhus, assisted by Emily Drury and high school agriculture teachers, Drew Robinson and Randy Adams, event organizers said.

The Outstanding Farm Bureau Youth contest consisted of six girls and two boys, who were judged 50 percent on a five-to-seven-minute interview and 50 percent on a two-minute speech given on agriculture or the Farm Bureau. The winner in the female division was Alana Pack, a senior at Anderson County High School. The winner in the male division was Jim Edington, also a senior. They received $100 each from Anderson Co. Farm Bureau. They will perform at our Farm Bureau annual meeting Oct. 14 to be held at Eagle Lake Convention Center and will also compete at the District Farm Bureau contest held Nov. 14 at Collins School in Shelbyville.

Farm Bureau had eight acts that performed in its variety contest. The winning act was a duet performed by Taryn and Kaelyn Gaunce, daughters of Brad and Tabitha Gaunce. They sang "The Lord Is Good To Me" from Disney's classic film "Johnny Appleseed" and were accompanied by Meridith Lewis on piano. They received $100 and were scheduled to perform Sept. 28 at the Burgoo festival. They will also perform at the Farm Bureau annual meeting on Oct. 14 and advance

Health dept. offers free, drive-thru flu shot clinic

From staff reports
The Anderson County health department will be offering a free, drive-thru flu shot clinic Oct. 2 from 9 a.m. to noon at the health department, located at 1180 Glensboro Road in Lawrenceburg.

Health department staff will have 300 free flu shots available, first come first served, for uninsured adults who reside in Anderson County.

If families wish to have their children vaccinated, they will need to bring children into the clinic during the department's regular business hours, Health Department Director Tim Wright said.

Business hours for the clinic are Monday through Wednesday from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Thursday from 8 a.m. to 6:30 p.m., and Friday from 8 a.m. to noon.

Wright said the health department uses the drive-thru clinic not only to provide a service to residents, but also as staff preparedness training in the event that numerous vaccinations would be need to be given.

"We see how many shot we can give in an hour, and if we ever have an event where we'd have to vaccinate the entire county, we can do the math," he said.

For questions on the free drive-thru flu shot clinic, contact the health department at 502-839-4551.

Beta Sigma Phi meetings resume

From staff reports
After a summer hiatus that included attending "You're Only Young Twice" at the Derby Dinner Theatre in June with members of Beta Sigma Phi, the Lawrenceburg Pierian Woman's Club met Sept. 19.

Following refreshments, members received copies of "The Sunday Philosophy Club," by Alexander McCall Smith, which will be discussed at next month's meeting Oct. 17.

President Fern Edgett introduced prospective member Patricia Wilson and announced that Andrea Dull has joined the club. Speakers Jeff McCormick and John Giles of M&G Tactical gave a talk about "Personal Defense Issues for Women."

Club member Deborah Stevens spoke about the club's history and its involvement with the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

The business meeting included an announcement of the results of a vote taken by mail during August. Members voted to withdraw membership in the General Federation of Women's Clubs and its Kentucky State affiliate in order to devote fundraising efforts to projects that benefit the local community.

The members voted to again host a luncheon and style show in the spring. Further details will be discussed at the next meeting.

Anderson County students named Sen. Jeff Green Scholars

From staff reports

Sixteen students from Anderson County have been named Sen. Jeff Green Scholars by the Kentucky Higher Education Assistance Authority (KHEAA) for outstanding academic performance in high school, according to a news release.

Students earn this designation by achieving a 4.0 grade point average each year of high school and scoring at least a 28 composite on the ACT.

These students have also earned $2,500 a year in Kentucky Educational Excellence Scholarship (KEES) awards. Their awards may be renewed each year of college if they continue to earn high grades, making the total value of their KEES worth $10,000.

Local students who earned this prestigious designation are:

• Anderson County High School: Haley

Burgin, Taylor Gilkin, Lauren Lawless, Liberty O'Neal, Frederick Schaefer, Melissa Shouse, Caitlin Smith, Megan Smith, Jessica Vincent, Shelby Watts, Lauren Welsh, John Wickizer, Jamie Williams and Amber Woolery.

• Christian Academy of Lawrenceburg: Forrest Bowman and Shay-lyn Burton.

The title honors the late state Sen. Jeff Green of Mayfield, who served in the Kentucky General Assembly from 1992 to 1997.

KEES and other Kentucky student aid programs are administered by KHEAA. KEES awards are funded by net Kentucky lottery proceeds and may be used at most colleges and universities in Kentucky. In some cases, the award may be used at out-of-state schools if the major the student is pursuing is not available in Kentucky. No application is necessary for KEES awards, and students may access their KEES account information on www.kheaa.com by setting up a MyKHEAA account.

Eddie Montgomery, ex-wife owe $12.7M on failed restaurant

By Todd Kleffman
The Advocate-Messenger

The hits keep coming for local country music star Eddie Montomery, but not on the music charts.

A lawsuit filed in Boyle Circuit Court by Central Bank and Trust Co. of Lexington claims Montgomery and his ex-wife Tracy Nunan owe nearly $12.7 million over the failed Eddie Montgomery Steak House in Harrodsburg.

The lawsuit also requests that the steakhouse property and the couple’s former home and property on Claunch Road in western Boyle County be sold on the courthouse steps in Master Commissioner sales to help pay off the alleged debt.

Neither Montgomery nor Nunan has yet filed a response to the allegations made in Central Bank’s complaint and neither could be reached for comment.

After initial attempts to locate the restaurant in Danville, Eddie Montgomery’s Steak House opened with much fanfare on Lucky Man Way off the U.S. 127 Bypass in Harrodsburg in late 2009. After the couple divorced a year later, the restaurant went to Nunan as part of the settlement, according to the Wikipedia entry for Montgomery Gentry, the duo that generated multiple Top 10 country hits and platinum and gold albums between 1999 and 2008.

The steakhouse closed abruptly in May of this year. The complaint states the Montgomery Group took out a corporate credit card in 2008. That account is now in default with a balance due of $39,987 as of Aug. 30, according to Count 1 of the lawsuit.

Count 2 alleges that Montgomerys, along with Walter and Gwen Mitchell, owner of Rocky Top Log Furniture in Garrard County, took out a commercial notes and signed construction agreement for $3.8 million in March of 2009 to purchase 38 acres in Harrodsburg and build the restaurant. That loan is now in default in the amount of $4,386,460, the lawsuit states.

A second loan for construction in the amount of $1,650,000 is now in default to the tune of $1,866,789.

Another loan is now in default for $917,570, according to the lawsuit, along with a $4.5 million loan that is in default for $5.4 million.

Central Bank asks the court to immediately turn over management of the restaurant and Claunch Road properties to the bank, and that both properties be sold at Master Commissioner sales in Boyle and Mercer counties.

SCORES

“The focus on individual students and goal-setting and focusing on what individual students needed to improve made a big difference [on scores],” Anderson County Instructional Supervisor Sharon Jackman said Friday afternoon.

Test results for the state accountability system Unbridled Learning, in its second year of use after replacing the federal No Child Left Behind model, showed considerable gains for several Anderson schools while reporting decreases in science scores across the district as well as the ACT for 11th graders.

Three out of five schools — Robert B. Turner, Emma B. Ward and Anderson County Middle School — failed to make a full point gain in 2012 to reach their annual measurable objective (AMO) goals, which measure a school’s ability to improve its overall score and meet a 95 percent participation rate. The annual objective for the high school also includes a graduation rate goal.

Anderson County High School and Saffell Street Elementary made a full point gain or more to meet their AMOs.

Saffell Street Elementary made the largest improvement in its overall score, jumping 36 percentage points and breaking into the top 30 percent of schools in Kentucky. The elementary school also moved from a “needs improvement” designation to “proficient/progressing,” meaning a school has both met its AMO and student participation goals.

The label of “progressing,” Saffell Street Principal Robin Arnzen said Friday, means Saffell Street is in the top 10 percent of schools — 101 elementary schools in Kentucky — that made the most gains this year.

Saffell Street improved in its overall test scores, ability to improve gap scores for minority, special education and free and reduced lunch students and year-to-year growth for all students in all grades.

Saffell Street fifth grade students (at the middle school this year as sixth graders) also increased proficient/distinguished scores for math by about 40 percent.

“Honestly, what worked was we were very focused, very intentional about what we were teaching,” Principal Arnzen said, “using the Common Core and making sure instruction was congruent with the learning target and was rigorous.”

Emma B. Ward Elementary and the Anderson County middle school were labeled as “needs improvement” for the second year in a *Schools/districts with classification “needs improvement” are all remaining schools/districts who did not place in top 10-30 percent of schools and fell below classification of “proficient” schools/districts in 70th percentile and “progressing” schools that met goals.

***“Focus School” category indicates school/district failed to meet Annual Measurable Objectives for two consecutive years; high schools with graduation rates below 60 percent for two consecutive years; and/or in bottom 10 percent for low scores among individual gap groups.

row, despite the middle school’s half-point gain. Both were ranked below the 70th percentile for their schools’ scores.

Emma B. Ward dropped 13 percentage points this year in its overall percentile ranking and Anderson County middle school reported the lowest overall score in the district, at 53.2 out of 100.

Robert B. Turner and the Anderson County High School both remained “proficient” for the second year in a row.

Because the high school reported low gap scores last year for minority, free and reduced lunch and special education students, Anderson County High School was designated a “focus school” again in 2012. Jackman said if the high school can continue to meet yearly objectives next year, the “focus school” designation could be lifted in fall 2014.

The high school — which improved in reading and social studies but decreased in math, writing and science test scores — received a much-needed boost through the state’s new graduation rate formula and improved college- and career-readiness scores.

The state department is using a new graduation rate formula that tracks the number of individual freshmen who receive their diploma four years later, and next year will phase out the average freshmen graduation rate, which provided an estimate of the percentage of students who graduated on time.

Although new graduation rate reported that 96.5 percent of Anderson County high school freshmen finish to graduate four years later, the high school did not meet its average freshmen graduation rate goal of 85.9 percent, reporting 84.5 percent for 2012.

Both graduation rate calculations were included in this year’s results, but only the graduation rate of 96.5 was used in adding up the district’s overall accountability score.

State assessment results also reported an increase of 5.9 percent in the number of high school students considered to be college- and career-ready.

Last year’s juniors, however, did not fare as well on the ACT.

Students dropped one full point on the ACT composite from a 19.6 in 2011 to 18.6 in 2012, and decreased in all tested subject areas of math, reading, science and English.

According to the Council on Post-secondary Education’s benchmark scores of 18 for English, 19 for math and 20 for reading, 46.9 percent of juniors met the English benchmark, a 12.7 percent decrease; 35.8 percent met the math benchmark, a 4.6 percent decrease; and 39.7 percent met the reading benchmark, a 8.2 percent decrease.

“I feel pretty good,” Anderson County High School Principal Chris Glass said when asked about the high school’s performance. “I know that ACT went down a point, but that was our second-highest [score] in school history. Obviously, the college- and career-readiness numbers, really excited about those ... it really shows that we’re preparing students for life after high school.”

Jackman and Mitchell said they’re also hopeful looking at how 10th graders scored last year on the PLAN assessment, a standardized test that indicates performance on the ACT.

An individual student’s growth is measured by looking at test performance from the PLAN to the ACT, Jackman said, so she’s pleased at how well last year’s sophomores performed.

Sophomores improved in every subject area on the PLAN and met all PLAN benchmarks, increasing its overall composite score by 0.3 points.

End-of-course exams in English II, Algebra II and biology, however, saw decreases in the percentages of students scoring proficient or higher, with the exception of U.S. history.

Jackman and Mitchell said the high school is very focused on improving end of course exam scores, which are included in the high school’s overall achievement, by striving to reduce the number of lower-performing students and move them into the next highest performance ranking.

“I think it’s a work in progress,” Jackman said of helping low-performing students score higher. “I think it’s a work in progress for every school.”

Growth scores, percentage of students at typical or higher levels of growth for reading and math, decreased at the middle school, high school, Turner and Ward. Saffell Street saw a 15-point jump in its growth scores.

Gap scores, which address student growth for traditionally low-scoring students, improved overall at the middle school, Saffell Street and Turner. The high school and Ward reported lowered overall gap scores.

Elementary schools made gains in achievement —K-PREP test scores that measure student performance in science, reading, math, social studies, writing and language mechanics — across the district with the exception of science, Jackman and Mitchell said.

The middle school also decreased by 8.9 percent for students achieving a proficient and/or distinguished on science and decreased 1.8 percent in proficient/distinguished for math, but made major improvements in reading, writing and language mechanics.

With the newly adopted standards in the state’s science curriculum and upcoming changes to the state’s Common Core for social studies, Mitchell and Jackman said, the district will renew its energies in science curriculum training for staff.

One teacher from each elementary, one from the middle school and one from the high school will be attending training on the new science standards and reporting back to their colleagues monthly in content area network meetings, Jackman and Mitchell said.

With the standards’ emphasis on engineering and math as it relates to science, both Jackman and Mitchell said they believe the Common Core science curriculum will introduce more “rigor” into the district’s science instruction.

Mitchell said she believes the district’s STEM (science, technology, engineering and math) courses at the high school and the middle school will also help toward improving science scores, and may lead to a “trickle-down” effect at the elementary level.

The district will receive new, adjusted scores later this fall after its program reviews — self-reported data sent to the state for Anderson County’s writing, arts and humanities, and practical living and career studies programs — are added to the district’s overall accountability scores.

The district will use the new scores, Mitchell and Jackman said, as “learning target” goals in preparation for spring testing.

Flooded church to hold Homecoming Sunday

Mt. Pleasant rebuilds, welcomes community

From staff reports
Mount Pleasant Baptist Church will hold its 169th Homecoming on Oct. 6, the church announced.
The church was devastated by flooding in August when Puncture Creek swelled an estimated 10 feet over its banks.
Since then church members, volunteers and supporters have worked to get the church back into shape and that effort is nearly complete, church members said in announcing Sunday's Homecoming event.
"We would like to send a special invitation to all the people who not only helped fix our church but also people who donated to help with materials," members said in a news release.

"Come join us in celebration of coming home."
Located on Highway 53 in western Anderson County, the church sustained massive damage in the flood, which flooded its nursery, meeting rooms, pastor's office and sanctuary.
The flood was so severe that it washed away the church's 1,000 gallon propane tank, which was found a mile and a half downstream several days later.
During Sunday's

Homecoming, Bro. Harold Garrison will speak at the 11 a.m. service, followed by a pot luck dinner in the church's fellowship hall.
New Vision will perform in the afternoon.

Seek to deposit the word in children's hearts

In Sunday's edition of the Lexington Herald-Leader an article was featured by Amanda Ripley, author of "The Smartest Kids in the World - and How They Got That Way" titled "Dedicated parents should just grab a book," in which she described how parental involvement in the home encourages learning and better academic achievement of the children.

Brian Owens
Faith columnist

Ripley, a journalist who traveled the world documenting the smartest children from various countries, says in her article that one commonality she noticed was the apparent lack of parental involvement in the schools themselves. According to Ripley, one parent described their level of involvement as being limited to "two short parent-teacher conferences a year... [she] was expected to leave the school to the teachers and the fundraising to the government." Befuddled that such a lack of parental contribution would result in better grades and overall achievement for the child, she noticed another interesting fact - where the parents lacked in in-school support (such as PTAs, volunteering, fundraisers, boosters, et al), they made up for in the home.

Citing a 2009 study of parenting in 13 countries, Ripley notes that, "parents who routinely read to their young children raised teen-agers who performed significantly better on a test of critical thinking in reading years later." She goes on to state that "parents who discussed movies, books, and the news with the kids had teen-agers who not only performed better in reading - but reported enjoying reading more overall."

The study makes several notable points, first of which is that parental involvement in sports, fundraising and even volunteering at school will not necessarily lead to a child who does well academically. I would further this assertion by saying that involvement in your child's activities does not automatically equal involvement with your child; yet that is precisely how many parents gauge their connection with their children.

The second observation Ripley makes is the importance of reading to our children. It is no coincidence that children who are read to become readers themselves, and in turn do better academically. Yet, I would go as far to say that while children who are read to do fair better academically, they also do emotionally and socially.

It really comes down to the act of spending time with your child.

Having your child snuggle under your arms as your read to them, whether that book be "The Chronicles of Narnia," "Pilgrim's Progress" or "Green Eggs and Ham," is something that goes beyond the book itself and into a moment of bonding that each child needs with his parent.

This has direct application to those of us who hold a Christian worldview. The notion of parental involvement is the sine qua non for those who believe what the scriptures teach about raising children.

Ours is a faith that came to us first in written form (Rom. 10:17), so reading to our children is essential. We know that faith does not come through osmosis, but rather through deliberate and purposeful personal evangelism, and our children are no different (Deut. 6:4-9). If we are not reading the Scriptures to our children, how can we expect them to have a desire to read them for themselves?

Yet this lack of Bible-reading in the home is a sober reality. In a 2012 study conducted by Lifeway Research, it was noted that while the average person owned at least one Bible, only about 37 percent read it daily. Out of those I wonder how many are reading it carefully and thoughtfully? And how many are reading persistently to their children?

The familiar words of Psalm 119:11 assert that "I have stored up your word in my heart that I might not sin against you." If we see the financial importance of starting savings accounts for our children into which we regularly deposit money for their future needs, how much more should we seek to spiritually deposit the word of God in their hearts, from which they can draw in times of stress, temptation, doubt and other trials of life? Make those deposits deliberately and regularly, for their good and God's glory.

MRS. E.B. SPARROW BROUGHT HOME THE RIBBONS

THE WAY WE WERE

50 YEARS AGO
Thursday, Sept. 19, 1963

Sweepstakes winner

Mrs. E.B. Sparrow, a three-time runner-up in the sweepstakes division of the Kentucky State Fair, copped the grand prize for the first time with her 90 entries in the fruit and vegetables, textile, art and craft and hobby show divisions.

She was presented the sweepstakes rosette blue ribbons and a silver bowl. Sparrow was the sweepstakes winner at the Anderson County Agricultural Fair three years in a row.

Mrs. Sparrow and her sister Mrs. Elvin Burgin of Gee, winner of the state sweepstakes in 1960 and again in 1962, were well known for their culinary art. Mrs. Burgin was not eligible to enter the sweepstakes in 1963, because participants could not win in consecutive years.

There were 1,325 entries in the culinary department, 69 of which were Mrs. Sparrow's. She had 15 items in the textile division, four in arts and crafts and two entries — an old Kentucky rifle and an antique fan over 100 years old in the hobby show.

She entered the State Fair for the first time in 1960, but had been showing at the local fair since she became a homemaker in 1935.

About 156 sticks of tobacco fell out a barn at the Routt-Witherspoon farm as a number of tier poles slipped while tobacco was being placed in the barn.

No one was hurt.

Elizabeth Satterly, 15, suffered a broken left ankle while roller skating in Lawrenceburg. She was treated at St. Joseph Hospital in Lexington and was convalescing at home.

Glenn Moffett received a severely sprained ankle in the game with Frankfort. He was able to be up on crutches, but would not see action in the upcoming game.

Ludlow Shouse and Mrs. Nelson Hawkins purchased the City Cab and Grocery Co. in Lawrenceburg. They said they would continue operation of these businesses at the College Street location.

T.G. Reed, who was operating an earth mover on the Beaver Lake project Monday of last week, suffered a broken leg when the rig overturned and threw him to the ground.

The break was so severe that the bone went through his leather high top boot.

Deaths

Emily Marlene Hail, infant daughter of Mrs. Doris Pence Hail and Boyd T. Hail, died several hours after birth.

Phillip Wayne Young, 20, died at his home in Sinai after a long illness. Survivors included his mother, Mrs. Nettie young, seven sisters, Mrs. Robert Stratton, Mrs. J.S. Caldwell, Mrs. Floyd Stratton, Mrs. William R. Perry, Judy Ann Young, Mrs. Marshall Foster, Mrs. Esco Bowman; and six brothers, James T., Ernest Bruce, Cecil Eugene, Clinton Delbert, William Hoover and Sidney Lewis Young.

SOME OF 90 ENTRIES

Mrs. E. B. Sparrow returned from Louisville with a few of her prize-winning entries she exhibited at the State Fair in 1963. She is pictured with her husband who had helped her enter her exhibits at the Anderson County Agricultural Fair and in Louisville for several years. The silver trophy on the table was presented Mrs. Sparrow as the Sweepstake winner. Large ribbons at left and right front were won at the Louisville event and the smaller ones presented at the local fair.

30 YEARS AGO Thursday, Sept. 15, 1983 Second place winners

The Gospel Alliance brought home the second place trophy from the gospel quartet competition at the Kentucky State Fair. Members were: Ricky Spaulding, Rex Burkhead, Kevin Sweazy, Jay Sullivan, Tim McClain and Bill Perry.

Angela Woolums was the winner of the Miss Stringtown Ruritan pageant. Lisa Hanks was runner-up and Jennifer Russell was voted Miss Congeniality.

Fish fryers

Schelma and Nora Belle Meriwether were pictured taking fish out of a fryer at the annual Alton Ruritan Club fish fry. The Meriwethers had fried up a heap of fish over the 23 years they were at fryer, but this would be their last time. They were putting the old fryer to rest. It was worn out.

'Beauty and the beast'

Miss Polly Parton, alias Paul Haden Jr. was wed to "Ugly Man" Allen Hanks after the Men's Beauty Contest and Ugly Man Contest at Stringtown Ruritan Club Fall Festival. Judge Executive Jim Catlett performed the ceremony for the "lovely" couple with "vows" from a Sears-Roebuck catalog.

Death

Benjamin Harrison Harley, 94, retired farmer, died at a Frankfort hospital. He was survived three sons, Walter, William and Arvin Harley.

15 YEARS AGO Wednesday, Sept. 16, 1998 Stringtown royalty

Katie Gritton was selected as Miss Stringtown 1998. First runner-up was Cindy Dispo-net and second runner-up was Sonya Satterly. Jenna Smith was the winner of the 10-12 age division. She is a daughter of Brad and Susan Smith. Honorable mention winners were: Rayma Ann Edington, daughter of Robert and Regina Edington, and Megan Cunningham, daughter of James Lee and Beth Cunningham.

Winner in the 6-8 age division was Chelsey Louise Peters, daughter of Darrell and Beck Peters. Honorable mention winners were Ramsey Marie Edington, daughter of Robert and Regina Edington, Chasidy Shelton, daughter of Steve and Cheri Shelton, Hannah Paige Smith, daughter of Brad and Susan Smith, and Jessica Smith, daughter of Dwayne and Angela Smith.

Winner in the 3-5 year-old division was Sabrina Leigh Shelton, daughter of Steve and Sherry Shelton. Runner-ups were Sharaya Cox, daughter of Kelly and Tina Cox, Brandi Warford, daughter of Davey and Sherry Warford; and Sarah Lynn Schell, daughter of Tim and Janet Schell.

Nancy Soard Beasley was given a surprise birthday party for her 75th birthday.

Rick and Jeanne Puckett celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary.

Deaths

Beryl David Combs, 56, Franklin County, died at his residence. He was a self-employed diesel mechanic and truck driver. He was a member of Anderson Masonic Lodge #90, Lawrenceburg Chapter #138. Survivors included his wife of 37 years, Joyce Nickels Combs, a daughter, Robin Webb and a son, Beryl David Combs, Jr.

James Dennie "J.D." Driskell, formerly of Lawrenceburg, died in Tempe, Ariz. He served as caretaker of the Floydsburg Cemetery and Chapel and later as the assistant superintendent of Cave Hill Cemetery in Louisville. He was a landscape architect formerly owning the Meadow Brook Nursery. He retired from the Arizona Highway Dept. of Beautification in 1977.

After retiring, he spent three months in Egypt establishing ornamental rose garden farms. He was the past president of the Phoenix Rose Society where he designed a garden of more than 1,200 roses. Survivors included two daughters, and three sisters, who lived in Lawrenceburg, Corinne Catlett, Catheryn Young and Virginia McBrayer.

Charlie Penney, 96, died at a Lexington rehabilitation center. He retired from United Service in Lexington. Survivors included a daughter, Mrs. Geraldine Williams.

James Gilbert "Jimmy" Sutherland, 75, died on his farm from injuries he received when a wagon he was working on fell. He was a son of Ernest and Lillie Brown Sutherland and a WWII navy veteran. Survivors included his wife of 51 years, Rama Satterly Sutherland, a daughter, Alma Murphy, and a son, David Sutherland.

Old rivalry, new feeling

By John Herndon
Sports editor

There are old rivalries, then there is Anderson County vs. Woodford County.

No, this is not the oldest continuous football meeting in Kentucky. The actual Anderson-Woodford meeting really only dates to 1963, when Woodford opened. Then, there is a little matter of the teams taking a couple of breaks, first in the 1980s, then again from 2006-10.

But forget those little technicalities. Ask most people in Anderson County who they want to beat the most and chances are Woodford will be near the top. Repeat the question in Versailles and chances are Anderson would be high on the list.

The Bearcats and Yellow Jackets kick it off again Friday night in Versailles at 7:30 p.m.

And as the case has been the last two times the programs faced off, it will be a district matchup. Unlike the last two, though, the Yellow Jackets are on equal footing with the Bearcats in the Class 5A, District 6 standings. Before the season started, nearly everyone picked Anderson as the team to beat in the district.

Few, however, saw Woodford's 36-0 shellacking of East Jessamine coming last Friday. It was Woodford's first win in five tries this year and the Jackets' first district victory since 2011.

"Football is a funny game," Anderson coach Mark Peach said. "If you don't show up and play with some passion, it is not like tennis or golf. Those are hard sports too, but it is just the physicality of the game."

Woodford coach Steve Stonebraker worked wonders at both Casey County and Garrard County before heading to Woodford in 2010. The rebuilding process has been slow in Versailles, but Peach says Friday night's game will not be a pushover, even though Anderson should be rated as a heavy favorite.

A year ago, Anderson struggled before putting Woodford away, 21-7. Two years ago, Anderson's state runner-up team prevailed, 31-13, in a game that was in doubt until the fourth quarter.

"Defensively, they run both a 40- and a 50-look," Peach says. "Coach Stonebraker does a good job. They do a great job with the play action. They have a sprint package that is very solid."

Before the season, Stonebraker noted that kicker-punter Zach Korby is a weapon. He could be the best Anderson will see this year.

But the fact remains that Anderson is expected to roll to its fifth win in six games Friday. The Bearcats are ranked in everyone's Top 5 Class 5A teams and were ranked in the state's Top 20 by both of the major computer rankings last week.

Peach, however, warns that the Bearcats can't overlook any team.

"It is a rivalry game and anything can happen," he says, invoking one of the oldest truisms of football. "They are 1-0 in the district and are fighting for a spot in the playoffs."

Series notes

**Woodford leads the all-time series, 21-17.

**Before the five-year break, Woodford had won six straight in the series. Prior to that, Anderson won four straight.

Second-half eruption gives Bearcats homecoming win over Montgomery

Cox return, Laytart pick fuel outburst

By John Herndon
Sports Editor

A week full of special homecoming activities? Check.

How about the now-traditional parade through downtown Lawrenceburg the night before what was supposed to be the annual pasting of some designated "W" on the schedule? Check.

A big crowd taking everything in on Friday night? Check again.

That presumed blowout of what is supposed to be the weakest team on the home schedule? Ah, let's wait a while on that one.

To be sure, the final score - Anderson County 48, Montgomery County 20 - looked like the normal procedure for homecoming. The Bearcats never seemed to be in any danger of a blemish to their record, which improved to 4-1 on the year.

Anderson County fullback Tristin Ashburn bulls over a Montgomery County tackler during Friday's game. Ashburn scored two touchdowns as the Bearcats romped, 48-20.

But the expected romp did not materialize in the first half. "We came out really flat. It was probably the worst half we have played," Anderson linebacker-fullback Tristin Ashburn said. "We just weren't pumped up for some reason."

But Anderson captured its district opener with a formula that has become maddeningly familiar in 2013: Sputter for a half or more, get a big play or two, explode, repeat blowout.

The Bearcats followed the pattern Friday, turning a 14-7 lead into the romp with a 27-point outburst in less than 10 minutes of the second half.

Ross Cox started the onslaught, returning a kick-off 88 yards for a score three minutes into the third quarter. Cox had fumbled the second half kickoff away at his own 38, setting up Montgomery's first score.

"First I was mad for fumbling the kickoff," Cox said. "I just told myself I was going to try to find a seam and pop it. I got a great block from my second wedge. The seam was there so I just took it there."

Seven minutes later, Zachary Carmichael bulled in from a yard out to cap a five-play, 80-yard drive set

CAMPBELLSVILLE - It probably would not be a good idea to refer to golf as an "individual sport" around Anderson County.

At least not any time soon, it wouldn't. For the Anderson County boys' team, earning a berth in the Kentucky high school state tournament was as much a result of teamwork as springing the halfback on third-and-long or finding a way to beat the full-court press.

"It was team or nothing," Anderson coach Jim Beward said after the Bearcats had beaten host Taylor County in a play-off hole to determine the second team to qualify for the state tournament, to be held next Tuesday and Wednesday at Bowling Green Country Club.

On a day when the Bearcats' biggest guns were having a bit of an off round and no Anderson golfer was even remotely close to qualifying for the state as an individual, the Bearcats got the round of his life from sophomore Zachary Toles, penciled in as Anderson's No. 5 player on the tournament team.

Toles carded a 79, his lowest score in three rounds on the par-72 course at Campbellsville Country Club this year. Toles paced Anderson to a 322 finish, tying with Taylor for second place, 18 strokes behind defending state champion, West Jessamine.

Danville's Andrew McKinney took individual medalist honors, shooting a 71 and defeating Fred Allen Meyer, last year's individual state champion, also of West Jessamine, in a three-hole playoff.

For much of Monday, things did not look to be going well for the Bearcats. Tyler Harrod and Lee Robinson, considered two of central Ken-

Riley does it again!

From staff reports

Anderson County golfer Kaitlyn Riley must like working overtime.

The Lady Bearcat senior won a sudden-death playoff by sinking a birdie on the first playoff hole of the Region 7 Tournament, held at Danville Country Club Monday afternoon.

Riley's birdie on the par-5 first hole gave her the final state tournament berth over Judianne Speach of West Jessamine and Jane Watts of Woodford County. All shot 77 over 18 holes and were part of a four-way tie for sixth place in the individual competition. It was the third time in four years that Riley had to go to a playoff to secure the state berth.

The Anderson team finished fifth with a team score of 358.

Riley moves on to the state tournament, held at Bowling Green Country Club next Friday and Saturday. For a complete report, see the Oct. 9 edition of The Anderson News.

Nick Wilson watches his approach shot head to the green on the playoff hole to determine a state tournament berth Monday. On his next shot, Wilson sank a 35-foot putt for a birdie to rejuvenate the Bearcats.

tucky's best, came to the clubhouse at 81 and 80, a bit higher than their average scores. No. 3 Nick Wilson, steady all season, was on his way to an 88, well off his average.

But Toles and Jordan Morgan kept the Bearcats in it.

In the extra hole at the 517-yard, par 5 No. 1, Anderson was in trouble from the beginning as Robinson's tee shot went out of bounds. "I thought I had lost it for us," Robinson said.

Anderson, however, was able to regroup when Wilson nailed an approach shot and sank a putt from about 35 feet for a birdie.

"Fortunately, Nick came out of the blue and said, 'Not today' and dropped that birdie putt," Beward said.

"That was the biggest shot of our year," Beward said.

The other Anderson golfers, some of whom had body language indicating they thought their chances were slim, suddenly perked up. Then when Jordan Morgan sank the final putt, the Bearcats went into full celebration. Anderson last made the state in 1992.

Anderson will play a practice round at the Bowling Green Country Club on Monday, then hit the links on Tuesday for real. If the Bearcats make the cut, they will return for a second 18-hole round on Wednesday. And they go as a team, as they have talked about all season. Said Beward, "This means the world that we have five guys that play together as a team."

up by Sam Laytart's interception in his own end zone.

It appeared that Laytart and the Montgomery receiver were bumping both ways as the ball headed to the end zone. "Yeah. And I ended up with the ball," Laytart grinned.

Laytart's theft was the back-breaker as Montgomery noticeably deflated.

"Sam's pick, that was a drive killer for them," Peach said. "They were knocking on the door. They could cut it back to one possession."

"It was a big game-changer," Anderson linebacker Tristin Ashburn added.

Less than three minutes after Carmichael's score, the stands started emptying as the Bearcats led 41-7. Cox had swiped a Chaiten Tomlin pass and returned it 27 yards for a score before Carmichael raced 53 yards for another.

"We knew they had been running off hitches," Cox said. "I just saw him run the hitch. So I just jumped. (The ball) hit in my bread basket."

Cox joined a somewhat rare company of individuals who found the end zone in three or more ways in one game. His catch of a Carmichael pass with 4:50 left in the first quarter put the Bearcats up 7-0.

Carmichael ran for two touchdowns and threw for two more. He picked up 91 yards on the ground to lead Anderson, and threw for an efficient 142 yards on an 11-for-16 night. He was not intercepted.

There was little early to suggest any lethargy as the Anderson offense marched for scores on its first two possessions. On the other side of the ball, Anderson stopped Montgomery on three-and-out on the Indians' first two possessions.

After taking over at their own 16, the Bearcats took 13 plays to methodically march for the score. While Cox hauled in Carmichael's pass from 11 yards for the score, it was his 37-yard scamper from the Anderson 27 that set things up.

After stopping Montgomery again - the Indians netted a minus-one yard offense on their first two possessions, the Bearcats only had to go 34 yards to paydirt. Carmichael found Ashburn alone in the right flat for a two-yard score.

They would also team up on a 7-yard score in the fourth quarter to give Carmichael nine scoring passes on the year. Ashburn bobbed that one but hung on. "It was a good throw. I just bobbed it for some reason," Ashburn said.

After getting the quick early lead, the Bearcats seemed to let up. Even though Montgomery finished the first quarter with a minus-one yard, the Indians were within a touchdown until Cox's kickoff return.

"We've got to just get back to work. I'm just proud of the boys," Peach said. "We found a way to win. We had a great week of practice this week. With all the festivities, it went really well. We had a great parade. We had a great pep rally today at school. We have to work on the inconsistency. Sometimes it is not one person. It happens in different areas of the game. We still found a way to execute when we needed to to get the victory."

So why the apparent lethargy?

"I have no idea," Peach said. "If you can't get excited to play in front of that crowd we had tonight for homecoming, I am not sure what can get you excited. That is my job to figure out."

But Montgomery did not have an answer to the Bearcats' explosiveness. As a result, Anderson got first district win.

"We didn't play our best. I think we were waiting for others to make plays around us. We all need to come together and play together," Cox said.

"Their kids really hung in there," Peach said of Montgomery. "They did not stop playing until the end. But, hey, we are 1-0 in the district and that is the first step in this whole process to try to secure some home games for the playoffs. That is the first step in the right direction."

"You saw what we are capable of."

Anderson County's STUDENTS of the WEEK

GRAYSON DRISKELL

Grade & School: Preschool, Christian Academy of Lawrenceburg
Favorite Subject: Learning Centers
Favorite Song: 'The Washing Machine Song'
Last Book I Read: Bible stories
Last Movie I Saw: 'Star Wars'
Person in History I'd Most Like to Meet: Darth Vader
Future Plans: To be Darth Vader
Principal's Comments: Grayson is a terrific young man. He is always very happy and plays well with others in the preschool classroom and on the playground. Grayson loves to build things and is actually amazingly creative for a child his age. He also loves to help his friends with class activities. He epitomizes the adage and Godly example 'to make friends, you have to be one.' It is a pleasure to have Grayson, his mom and dad, and his big brother as part of the Christian Academy 'family.'

JESSE CURRENS

Grade & School: Senior, Anderson County High School
Favorite Subject: Math
Favorite Musical Genre: Christian and classic country
Last Book I Read: The Bible
Person in History I'd Most Like to Meet: Jesus Christ
Future Plans: Attend college and officiate college basketball games
Principal's Comments: Jesse is the epitome of a model ACHS student. He is a great role model for students through his hard work, academic success, dedication, and love for ACHS. He also helps Mr. Saltee in the athletic department with various tasks throughout the year. He will definitely be missed after this year.

Simmons' hat trick leads Anderson past Shelby

By John Herndon
Sports Editor

It's commonly called a "hat trick." And when David Simmons went to work against Shelby County last Tuesday, there is little doubt his hat was black.

He was the bad guy to Shelby. He was the executioner.

Simmons scored three times over a seven-minute span to power Anderson County to a 5-2 win over its 30th District rival.

Simmons broke a 1-1 tie with three minutes to play in the first half when he connected off a pass from Clayton Barnett directly in front of the net, then repeated at the other end of the field three minutes into the second half. A minute later, Simmons broke free again and fired a rocket past Shelby goalie Luke Dove.

Dove had no chance to stop any of the three scores.

"The late first half goal and the two early goals in second half certainly killed off the game," Anderson coach Khamisi Campbell said.

With things firmly under control, Campbell substituted freely the rest of the game. Anderson's Dalton Wells scored late before Shelby also tallied late to set the final score.

Anderson can sew up the No. 2 seed in the 30th District Tournament with a win over Spencer County on Oct. 3 at the home field. If the Bearcats win that game, Shelby will be the No. 3 seed in the district tournament, since the Rockets have already beaten Spencer.

If Spencer beats Anderson, it would throw the district race into a 3-way tie-breaker for the 2, 3, and 4 spots. Collins has sewed up the top seed.

Anderson showed early in Tuesday's contest that it has every intention of being that No. 2 seed. The Bearcats dominated from the outset, even if the scoreboard did not show it until the second half.

For that matter, the scoreboard didn't show much of anything as it began to malfunction during the junior varsity game, won by Shelby, 3-1, and was completely turned off for the varsity game. An official kept time on the field.

Anderson attacked as if time was running out, but was not able to finish most of those early chances. Garrett Pritchert took a pass from Hunter Wilson and drove one past Dove in the 16th minute. Pritchert just missed on two other chances in the first half.

Shelby's Cole Meredith got free for a goal to tie things 11 minutes later.

Despite the tight score in the first half, Anderson's dominance was unmistakable as the Bearcats controlled possession for much of the first half. "We did dominate possession and had majority of the chances as I expected we would. We just didn't do a good enough job of finishing our chances," Campbell said.

After Simmons' explosion, Campbell started experimenting with his lineup and eventually got freshman goalkeeper Kyle Barnett into a varsity game for the second time this season. Barnett replaced starter Jordan Thompson, who had been playing with an undisclosed injury, about midway through the second half.

"I felt pretty confident the game was won, so I was able to pull several starters and give some JV players some playing time," Campbell said. "We gave these players important minutes which is vital to their development."

Western Hills 5, Anderson Co. 4

Western Hills scored with only three minutes to play to outlast Anderson County 5-4 last Thursday in Frankfort.

The Wolverines had scored three times in the first half, but Anderson rallied with two goals in three minutes early in the second half.

The Bearcats tied it when Wells delivered on a free kick 10 minutes later.

The teams traded goals with Western Hills scoring on a free kick and Anderson using a strong combination to get a score from Garrett Pritchert.

Mercer Co. 5, Anderson Co. 0

Mercer, ranked 22nd in the latest statewide poll, scored four times in the first half, then cruised to an impressive win over the Bearcats Saturday night in Harrodsburg. "We were missing a starting defender and had several fatigued players," Campbell said, noting the busy week might have taken its toll on the Bearcats. "Mercer was a lot fresher as they had an entire week off before this game and pressed a lot better."

"We didn't play well in or out of possession," Campbell noted the Bearcats played better after intermission, but "the damage was already done."

Close is not enough for Lady Bearcats

Anderson unable to overcome early South Oldham lead

By John Herndon
Sports Editor

Anderson County was just a little late in getting to the game Saturday afternoon.

South Oldham scored twice in the first seven minutes, then kept the Lady Bearcats at bay the rest of the way for a 2-1 victory in girls' soccer action.

"We started off really slow," Anderson coach Jason Earnest lamented. "We have had that happen quite a bit this year, for some reason. We weren't ready to play at the start of the game."

"We had played them in the pre-season and tied them. Today, we got behind, but all of a sudden, we started playing better. We started playing every possession."

The Lady Bearcats got within striking distance early in the second half when Autumn Miller headed home a pass by Grace Casciola from the right wing to set the final score. "That is really the way you want to score," Earnest smiled. "It is great to set up a score out of a running play and Grace made a beautiful pass, then Autumn made a beautiful play to get the ball by the keeper," Earnest said.

But it was all the Lady Bearcats could muster, even though they appeared to control possession for most of the second half and had several good chances to score. The contest ended with Anderson pounding the goal but unable to get the ball to the back of the net.

"We have had a lot of trouble scoring all year," Earnest said. "If I go back and add it up, this is probably the lowest scoring team I have had. The schedule is tough, but we have had harder schedules than this. When you are having trouble scoring, you start second-guessing yourself and you pass the ball rather than take the shot."

Earnest, however, was quick to note, "We are moving the ball better."

With the season winding down and the second seed in the 30th District Tournament locked up, Anderson is turning its focus from a 4-10-2 record to getting better and defending the district title it won a year ago.

"A week and a half ago, I was really concerned," Earnest said of the Lady Bearcats' district chances. "I feel a lot better now, even though we are 4-10-2. We played with South Oldham and they are one of the top teams in the region. They always have been. They are not what they were 10 years ago, but they are still one of the best in the region."

(South Oldham won six state championships in a seven-season period from 1995-2001, but have not won one since.)

"They just took the best team in the region, Oldham County, to overtime," Earnest said of the Sept. 4 match.

Anderson should note how close it has played one of the state's perennial powers, Earnest said. "I feel like we can compete with anybody if we come to play," he said. "It is a matter of getting our confidence up and getting everybody on the same page."

Woodford Co. 3, Anderson Co. 0

Visiting Woodford County scored a 3-0 win over the Lady Bearcats last Wednesday in a contest Earnest said was much more even than the score indicates.

"We both had chances (to score in the first half)," he said. "Woodford scored with about five minutes to go in the first half when they got a breakthrough."

The Yellow Jackets scored again midway through the second half, then sealed the victory late as Anderson was simply unable to finish out of its attack.

Anderson Co. 1, Western Hills 0

The Lady Bearcats scored a 1-0 home field victory over Western Hills last Monday night.

"It probably should have been 5-0 or 6-0," Earnest said.

Anderson's Madeline Wilson got the game's only goal in the first half.

Lady Cats place high in SMASH tourney

From staff reports

Anderson County placed second in the silver bracket of the Second Annual Volleyball SMASH Tournament, held at the high school Friday and Saturday. Eight additional teams participated with LaRue County being crowned the gold champions in a stellar performance over Madison Central for the title.

Anderson fell to Bardstown (25-19, 25-27, 15-6) for silver bracket crown.

"Our players fought hard in the second match to make a come back from several points down to pull off a victory over the Tigers," said Anderson coach Courtney DeLong. "It was an exciting match with both teams fighting hard for silver."

"We had some impressive plays, big defense and accurate serves that helped us topple the Tigers in the second match," said assistant coach Bob Hardin.

That momentum didn't carry over in the third game. The Lady Bearcats trailed in the third game as Bardstown took a 15-6 win.

Taylor County won the bronze bracket over Beth Haven and East Jessamine took the copper bracket with a win over Spencer County. Henry County also participated in the tournament.

"This year's SMASH Tournament was a tremendous success and helped to raise funds for our Lady Bearcat volleyball program," said DeLong.

"It's also win-win for both our team and our community who benefit each year from this event," Hardin said.
